'TIS THE SEASON FROM THE LICDP

We would like to wish you and your family a safe, healthy, and happy holiday season.

A Word From our Founder:

Instead of viewing December as an end, I have always preferred to see it as the beginning of a new year filled with new opportunities. However, saying goodbye to 2020 will come much easier to me, as I am sure it will for you too.

As we all look forward to a brighter 2021, I would like to extend a personal invitation to you to reach out and find out how the Collaborative process can help preserve your family's dignity during times of divorce or separation.

From our LICDP family to yours, we wish you a prosperous holiday season and we look forward to collaborating with you.

Liz Vaz, Esq.

Founder of The Long Island Collaborative Divorce Professionals, Inc.

Co-Parenting during the holidays can be extremely difficult. Emotions are running high and we can easily lose sight of the joys of the holidays as we feel bogged down by the stressors of life- and divorce proceedings only add another layer of stress.

Not just for end-of-the-year holidays, but for all special occasions, LICDP's Debra Rubin, Esq., has put together some tips for co-parenting during busy times of the year. The bottom line is if you try to stay cooperative, understanding, and keep your children's wellbeing at the forefront of your hectic scheduling, your holiday season can still be a joyous one.

Collaborative Divorce and Special Needs

Divorcing is rarely easy and having a child with special needs adds another layer of complexity. LICDP's Aaron Lieberman, CFP has first-hand experience and provides some reassurance on how the Collaborative Model can really help families put the children first, special needs or not.
