

Divorce with Dignity and Fall Into Collaborative

The Long Island Collaborative Divorce Professionals have been busy working on trainings, preparing resources, and creating content that can help divorcing couples and their loved ones.

For this month's Collaborative Circle, two of our esteemed attorneys, Liz Vaz, Esq. and Debra Rubin, Esq., spoke about job loss and how this impacts couples, especially during the times in which we live.

Click Here to Watch This Month's Collaborative Circle Chat!

When a couple gets divorced, the effects are felt by all of those closest to them. When children are involved, Grandparents often feel even more deeply impacted as they are concerned for their grandchild(ren)'s well-being.

The Collaborative Process can ease this anxiety through it's client-centered approach to reach resolution in a way that works for all participants.

Click the button below to read an article by the LICDP's Jacqueline Caputo, Esq. that explains just how the Collaborative Model works for everyone involved, beyond the divorcing pair.

Click Here to Read "Healing Families Beyond the Couple- How Collaborative Helps Grandparents"

Did you ever wonder why you would need a financial neutral in your

Collaborative Divorce?

Click the button below to read an article by the LICDP's own Nannette Watts, CPA, ABV, CFF, that may make you think twice!

Nannette explains how a financial neutral can help your Collaborative Divorce progress more smoothly- no matter your financial circumstances. Your Family Deserves the Best. Your Family Deserves Collaborative.

Click Here to Read "Who Needs a Financial Neutral Anyway? You Do."

Visit us on social media by clicking the buttons below!

